13 Alabama Ghosts and Jeffrey By Margaret Gillis Windham Kathryn Tucker and Figh

According to the alphabet, Alabama ranks first in the Union. According to two writers, it also ranks first in ghosts. Ghost writers Kathryn Tucker Windham and Margaret Gillis Figh examined hundreds of ghosts before selecting thirteen for eulogy-along with Jeffrey. Windham and Figh have gathered material from throughout the state and have collected photographs of many ghost habitats. One example of their far-flung search was spectacular. Their publisher happened to be driving across the state of Alabama three hundred miles from his hometown, and a hundred miles from Kathryn Windham's or Margaret Figh's, when his car and quite a few others zipping along the highway barely missed a pedestrian out in the middle of the busy thoroughfare between opposing traffic lanes. This pedestrian was firing away with a camera and - yes - it was Kathryn Tucker Windham, our ghost coauthor, searching for the best angle from which to shoot a ghost house fronting this lucky site.

The camera in the middle of the highway was the same one that a few months earlier had shot Jeffrey at the Windham home. Jeffrey, in case you have not guessed, is the Windhams' own private ghost. For his connection with this book, and for the connection in turn with folklore specialist Margaret Figh, the reader is advised to turn to the Foreword and the Preface inside the book. Jeffrey is as interesting a ghost as one can find: he not only is not camera shy, he chooses to manifest himself in the home of an author with a reputation for prolific and yet accurate reporting-or so we believe.

Not that Jeffrey is greater than any of Alabama's 13 greatest ghosts described in this book. It is only that Jeffrey has chosen to prod these authors into writing about him and his associates.
